

Green Arrow

Oliver Queen is a billionaire that has a perfect life and gets almost anything he wants. Then one day it all goes wrong... Oliver Queen is on a private yacht with his girlfriend and dad then all of the sudden the boat starts tipping over over and starts to sink. Sarah (Oliver's girlfriend) starts sliding towards the deck. Oliver grabbed her hand but she slipped out and fell into the now sunken deck. -half an hour later- Oliver is on a life raft with his dad and another person. They start talking, and to make Oliver survive his dad (Robert) pulls out a pistol and shoots himself and the other person. Then Oliver gets stuck and stranded on an island and lives there for many years before he is found and taken home by ship.

His powers are: he has insane bowmanship, swordsmanship, athleticism and strength. These were all from when he was stranded on the island and had to fight for his life multiple times there.

His costume is a green robe/jacket. His headwear is a hood with a black mask around his eyes. His hood goes around his face to conceal it from enemies. His bow string is also made out of a type of flexible metal so he can slide down his grappling rope thingie.

He has only one weakness. He's mortal. He pretty much has only one weakness and that is that he's mortal. He has all of the abilities of other superheroes, but most of them have one other thing like, hyper regeneration or something like that to make them almost unable to die.

So basically he is the ultimate archery hero. He has little weakness, awesome with weapons, and has an awesome outfit! He even survived on an island for 5 years and fought a super villain on the island. His name was Slade. So in my opinion he is the best superhero ever.
