

My Hero, My Cousin Noah

CJ O'Connell

What is a hero? A hero is someone who helps people and someone you look up to. A hero does not have to be super hero like Superman. The best heroes are family who love you unconditionally even if you are a pesky younger cousin. My personal is Noah Read, my cousin who is 19 years old.

I have always looked up to Noah not only because he is taller than me but he also an awesome person. When I was little he always made time to play with me especially at the lake. He always makes me feel better when my other cousins pick on me. Noah is really fun and kind, a great guy.

Recently, I have really began to look up to Noah even more than usual. Noah is junior in college at St. Louis University in St. Louis, MO. His major is Biomedical Engineering with a minor in Spanish. He currently is taking courses in Differential Equations, Material Science, Circuits, Thermodynamics and Spanish. Noah really likes math and science and is very focused on his courses.

In middle school, he started to think about becoming an engineer. I want to be an engineer when I grow up too. He researched different engineering professions and decided on Biomedical Engineering and hopes to design a prosthetic to help people in the future. He stays motivated by a desire to help people and curiosity of where life will take him in the future. Noah embraces the unknown. I am inspired by Noah because we have similar interests. He always encourages me to do my best and sets a great example.

Noah is my hero because he encourages to work hard even when I am frustrated. He inspires me because I want to be an engineer too. I am not sure which type of engineer but I know that Noah will be there to help me if I need it.
