

Mewtwo

Scientists once found DNA belonging to the Pokemon Mew. They decided to do some tests on it. They used the DNA to try to artificially create life. After many unsuccessful experiments, they created five successful life forms. Those types were a Squirtle, a Bulbasaur, a Charmander, a human girl and MewTwo. They decided to run stability tests to see how they would react to different circumstances and only MewTwo survived. They could have kept the other four alive, but were careless with them because they knew they could just make more. Mewtwo got angry at his creators for their careless actions. In a fit of rage, he burned the whole laboratory down killing everyone inside. He escaped into the wilderness.

Mewtwo has a wide variety of attacks. Due to having his DNA from Mew itself, he is capable of learning any move he want.

The Mewtwo resembles the Mew, but with it's own signature differences. It is a lavender color with a long purple tail and purple eyes. It has frog-like hands and feet. Its ears and shape, like Mew , resemble a cat except for a tube shape on the back of its neck. When it walks it moves upright like a human.

The Mewtwo has three weaknesses. Its weaknesses are Bug, Ghost and Dark type Pokemon.

Mewtwo doesn't currently have a mission. Mewtwo could have used his vast knowledge for better things than trying to take over the world. I believe he is now trying to become a better Pokemon. I hope in the future, he will be fighting for good.