What is a Bird?

Birds are animals that have wings covered with feathers. Most are excellent filers. Birds also have hard bills, or beaks, that they use to get food. Most have sharp eyesight. They can spot their food at great distances. Some, such as owls, can even see it in the dark.

Vertebrates

Birds are vertebrates. A vertebrate is an animal with a backbone that helps to support its body. Birds are also warm-blooded. The body temperature of a warm-blooded animal always stays about the same. It does not drop on cold days or rise on warm days. A bird's normal body temperature is just a little warmer than a human's.
