

GUSTAR (parte 3)

We know that we need TWO forms of the verb gustar to express likes/dislikes:

gusta and gustan.

We also know that we can use the verb "gustar" with indirect object pronouns (me, te, le) to talk about what other people like and dislike.

The next thing we need to learn about "gustar" is that we can add prepositional pronouns to emphasize or clarify whose opinions are being stated.

		prepositional pronoun		indirect object pronoun
Never use "yo" or "tú" in a gusta statement!	Emphasis	A	mí	(no)	me	gusta	infinitive or singular noun
		A	tí		te
	Clarification	A	usted		* le	gustan	plural noun
		A	él
A		ella
		A	(name)

The statement "Le gusta la gorra." could mean THREE things:

- You (formal) like the hat. (usted)
 - He likes the hat. (él)
 - She likes the hat. (ella)

We need to add "A" and a prepositional pronoun to CLARIFY exactly whose opinion is being expressed.
