LETTER FROM

Dear Readers,

Welcome to the 2013 Issue of Hawt and Horrid Hair. Thank you for buying a copy of my magazine. I am the proudest and the most honored editor in the entire world. I have the best writers and the most loyal readers. Without you all, my magazine would not be what it is today.

Thank you to all my readers, writers, and staff members. I know that I can always count on you guys when I need to. All of you seem to never let me down and I could not possibly be any luckier than this.

When I first planned out this magazine, I never would have thought it would have gone this big. I've always had dreams of writing my own magazine, but that was surprisingly not my favorite part of the process.

Have you ever seen a child learn how to ride a bike for the first time without their training wheels? Well, in this process; I observed as other writers found their own literacy sense in the articles they have written. I also learned that some of my closest friends were rather great writers such as, Sophie Bengel. Her article on A+ Accessories, where she tells us how to find the perfect head band and when not to buy a head band is highly recommended by me. See this article on page 14 of the magazine; it will surely help you find the best fitted headbands for you. Also, read the hilarious short story Megan Bonikowske had written for me called A Bad Day for a Bun. It is about one of her worst hair days ever, maybe even the worst hair day she has ever had in her entire life. It will definitely get a chuckle out of you. Find this story on page 26 of our magazine.

As of my successes and failures, I have had so many of both. Believe me please, not every magazine will get published on the first time. Thankfully, mine did go through on my first try. I also thank BME Corporations for helping me publish yet another magazine. I could not have done anything without you awing people.

This year I had succeeded in plenty of things. I graduated at the Merian University of Wiscland for my master's degree in journalism and editorial studies. I could not have possibly done that without my amazing and wacky teacher, Professor Keesh. If I were without his understanding mind, honest intelligent lectures, and fantastically fun self, I surely would not have had the motivation to reach my master's degree. He will be missed by me dearly.

This year I also had failed in plenty of things. My staff has helped me so much with organization and neatness. They helped me keep my mind sane because being head of a magazine is unquestionably extremely difficult. If I did not have everyone's help, I would have drowned in my own papers and had no inspirations to unblock my writing glitches. They were the ones who blew my mind the most with such enthusiasm, hope, and love for writing, editing, and publishing. I cannot imagine my life and my journey without you all.

I decided to create this magazine to inform my fellow stylist that their talent is being recognized. Also, it was made for spreading the knowledge and creativity of doing hair. Styling hair can be a hobby, a lifestyle, art, and even a therapy practice to some. For me, it is my most favorite hobby. Maybe someday I will turn it into my career; therefore, it would be my lifestyle. I would not mind it being so, however. I love doing hair and it never bores me whatsoever. This magazine was created to disperse others ideas for various types of unique and suitable hairstyles. It was also made so people could find their own customized hair do and find the hair stylist in themselves. I hope I helped many of you with your interest in hair.

My goals for this magazine involve adding more and more issues on to this one. Of course, I would like for my readers to be as satisfied as possible. I would also like to get more readers and discover more fantastic writers. If you are a writer and would like to write an article or story for my magazine, please contact me with the information down below.

My personal goals include getting my master's degree in artistic studies and social media. I hope to conceive mine and my husband's children; I would like a big family and my parents have been waiting long and patient enough for their grandchildren. I also wish to improve on my writing, editing, and literacy. Other than those, I have many new goals I make and reach each and every day.

Thank you again to my loyal readers. Thanks to my hardworking writers and staff. Thank you to my wonderful parents. Thank you to Cara Byom and Ashley Stillman from Hortonville WI for the flattering compliments. I am most definitely proud and glad I have helped you both so much. Thank you all for this brilliant new journey and for the amazing support.

Sincerely,

Zong Xiong

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Your Great 2012 magazine on hair was extremely amazing! I have gotten so many compliments on the hair styles I have tried that you recommended in your magazine. Everything your magazine recommended has worked great- I have never seen such a well put together magazine like yours! Your magazines have given me the simplest tips to make everything about my hair look better. I will only use the products you recommend because they have helped me the most! I look forward to more of your great magazines in hope they are as good as the firsts!

Sincerely,

Ashley Stillman

Hortonville, WI

Dear Editor:

Your magazine saved my hair! I always wondered what I could do with my hair. All I would ever do is leave it down or up in a simple ponytail. I never felt confident enough about my hair to try new things, but thanks to your advice and magazine I tried new hairstyles and I feel very confident now. In fact, I can never go out wearing one of the hairstyles in your magazine without getting a compliment. I wear my hair in a different hairstyle almost every day. I am so glad that the cover of your magazine caught my attention.

Your magazine never gets boring and I've recommended it to all my friends. I look forward to your future magazines. People ask me where I get ideas for my hair and I tell them about your magazine. I thank you so much for your advice.

Sincerely,

Cara Byom

Beautiful Buns

By: Tia Jones

There are so many beautiful styles of buns for all lengths of hair. One of which is the braided ballerina bun. To do this bun, you will need a brush, a bun maker or a sock, rubber bands, hair ties, and lots of bobby pins. To make the doughnut with the sock, you have to first cut off the closed end of the sock. Now all you have to do is simply roll the sock to make it look like a hair tie. Now you will have a homemade bun maker that makes buns just as well as a store bought one.

To begin, brush your hair into a high pony tail and secure with a hair tie. Next, take your bun maker or sock and slip it over your pony tail. Now spread your hair out over the sock or bun maker, making sure it's all covered. After that, take little sections of hair that comes out of the bun and braid them, securing the ends with a rubber band. Repeat the last step until you have the desired amount of braids in your bun. Once you have finished, put a rubber band over the entire bun. You will have a lot of hair sticking out of the ends, but that's alright. Take out the ends of the braids that stick out. With the excess hair, take sections and begin twisting them around the bun, securing with bobby pins as you go. Repeat this until all your hair is twisted around your bun. Finish by spraying with hair spray and any excess accessories you want to.

This hairstyle can be worn with anything! A girly sporty look to very elegant to professional look, whatever it is you are looking for, this will work with it.

Now for a much simpler, lazy day, hair style, the messy top knot. All you need for this is few hair ties. There are many ways you can do this hair style, but this is one very quick and easy way.

After brushing your hair, flip your head upside down and begin to gather all your hair at the top of your head. Start twisting all of the hair you have gathered together tightly. Wrap that twisted hair together at the top of your head to form a bun. Then secure with one to two hair ties to get the look you desire.

This bun is great to wear on early mornings, lazy days, and for work outs. You can also dress it up by putting in clips or a head band. If you want to make it look even messier, pull out a few hairs until you get the bun you desire.

Different Easy and Cute Hairstyles

By: Paige St. Cyr

There are many easy yet cute hairstyles you can do whether you are going out, going to a party, or just for an everyday hairstyle. You can make your hair look like it has more volume or less. One way to make your hair have more volume if you are just wearing it down is to put dry shampoo in your hair. If you put your hair in a braid or fishtail braid you can tug on the braid slightly.

For short hair you cannot do many things to your hair but if you have bangs you can put them back in a twisted French braid, a snake braid, a braid, a French braid, and to just pin it back. If you do not want anyone to see the bobby pin or pins when you pin it back you can lift up a piece of your hair put the bobby pins in and then put the hair over it so no one can see the bobby pins. Another hair style you could do is tease underneath your hair to make your hair have poofiness to it. You can also take your bangs, tease them, and then pin your bangs back to make your hair have a poof to it.

For medium and long length hair you can put your hair in braids, buns, pony tails, or just wear your hair down. Different braids you can do with your hair are: snake braids, French braids, Indian braids, a normal braid, Dutch braid, waterfall braid, four strand braid, fishtail braid. Personally the hardest braid to learn to do would be the Dutch braid and the easiest braid is a normal braid or a fish tail braid. If you decide to wear your hair down you can either buy a wand which you wrap your hair around and it gives you loose beachy curls or you can straighten your hair. If you want to add more volume to your hair you can buy dry shampoo at Wal-Mart and spray your roots, leave it in for a few minutes, and then rub it in a little to make it look messy. Putting your hair in a bun can be hard so when getting it to the top of your head you might want to bend over and have a hair grip ready to tie up your hair for any bun. For a messy looking bun you can either bend over or just sit up depending where you want it on your head. For a messy bun it is easier to make a bun with two day old hair or even three day old hair. Just have a hair grip ready and just gather it into a pony the more bumps the messier. When you are wrapping the hair grip about the second or third wrap your hair over and just scrunch it all together and wrap it with a hair grip. If you do not want loose pieces hanging out you can use bobby pins to pin them back. If you are just putting your hair in a pony you can straighten your hair and then put it into a sleek or messy pony or curl it. Or you can put it in a pony and then curl or straighten the pony tail.

All of these hair ideas are cute and will keep you looking fresh. I would consider not using a lot of conditioner whenever washing your hair only use a small amount after you can spray dry conditioner in your hair while your hair is still damp. I hope you will consider my hair tips and use them sometime!

Hair Accessories

By: Sophie Bengel

Adding hair accessories can give your outfit a good finishing touch. In this article I will list a few different tips and techniques to wearing head bands correctly.

The first thing I will be talking about is how tight a headband can be. Don't you hate it when you buy a headband and it is too tight? Well I have the solution for you. Before you even buy a headband try it on. If it is REALLY tight put it back, and don't buy it. You would just be wasting your money. I know it may be really cute, but just trust me. If the headband is only a little tight, that is ok. You can always stretch it out while wearing it. If it is not tight at all and it just falls off your head don't buy that one. Sometimes on the rack there are other ones of the same design. On some rare occasions the headband will be looser or tighter than the other one.

Some people have trouble with keeping their headbands on while working out. Well, I have the cure for you. Before putting in a headband, spray it a little with hairspray. The hairspray will make it stick to your hair a little better. Make sure the hairspray that you spray on it is not heavy duty hairspray. If you do spray on the heavy duty kind, it will make the headband too sticky. Another thing you can try is, if you have bangs just pin them back with bobby pins. Then don't wear a headband at all. This will then stop anything from being on your head, or any distractions. I usually do this when I have meets, so I don't have to worry about my headband falling out.

I don't know about you, but some days my hair just doesn't want to straighten or corporate. To help you have decent looking hair for school or whatever I have a few simple steps for you. First straighten your hair as best as you can. Don't worry your hair doesn't have to be perfectly straight. Just try your best, but don't stress over it. When you have your hair as straight as it will get pick a headband that will go good with your outfit. Sometimes it is good to just pick a black headband. Then just push back your hair with the headband. As you can see your hair doesn't look as curly. Another great thing about headbands is that if your ponytail is bumpy a headband can help. Just put one in and it helps smooth it out. Try to pick one that is one color only, so it doesn't stand out too much.

Another good hairstyle is to use bows and put them on your headbands. Usually it looks good if you put the bow on a plain headband. You can also clip the bow onto your ponytail holder.

Do you have problems storing your new headbands and bows? Well I have a solution for you. Go to Hobby Lobby and pick out your favorite ribbon. Then tie it to a nail in the wall. Afterwards you can then clip all your flowers and bows to the ribbon. This will keep all your bows headbands, and flowers neat and safe.

You can also make your own bows. Go to Hobby Lobby and pick out different colors and sizes of ribbon. Then you can hot glow them into shapes and designs. Afterwards you have to be a clip and hot glue that on too. This will save you a lot of money. Most bows cost at least five dollars a bow. It also can be pretty crazy shopping sometimes and sometimes I don't even want to go shopping. It also gives you something to do on a boring day. By doing this you can also design it the way you like.

If you ever have trouble finding good stores for headbands, bows, or flowers I have some good stores. These stores include Claire's, Icing, and Target. What's great about these stores is they almost always have a sale going on. Hair accessories are really great for just topping off a good outfit. Hair accessories are also very cheap and easy to get. They also can turn a bad hair day into a not so bad one. If you ever have trouble finding a decent store, go to my website at www.hairaccessories101.com At my website there are store names, tips, and hairstyles. If you have any questions please email me and thank you for the support.

WHAT TYPE OF HAIR FITS YOU BEST?

? On average, how long do you spend on your hair each morning?

- A) It takes me about an hour.
- B) It takes me about 30 minutes.
- C) It takes me about 5 minutes.

If you received mostly A's then you are completely comfortable with yourself and make sure you always look presentable. For this personality, I recommend a more sophisticated look like curling your hair or adding a little detail such as a bow or flower to your straightened hair.

? Are you a trendsetter or do you follow what other people are doing?

- A) I am a trendsetter!
- B) I am definitely a follower.
- C) I am one of a kind; no one has style like me!

If you received a majority of B's then you like to follow all trends that are set for you. You don't like to stand out and the best hairstyles for this type of person are simple. Simple and straightened, simple and natural, or maybe just a simple up do. But, don't forget to mix it up once and awhile and step out of your comfort zone.

? Do you consider yourself outgoing or shy?

- A) Totally comfortable while talking to people.
- B) Definitely shy, only talk to people I am close with.
- C) I can talk to anyone who will listen.

? How would your friends describe you?

- A) Flirty, I always have a boyfriend.
- B) Quiet, I give good advice.
- C) Colorful and loud, I am never outspoken and always share your opinion.

If you received mainly C's then you like to stand out and be heard. You don't really care what people think about you or what they think about your style. You like to do your own thing, so for your hair you could dye it one or multiple colors to make sure that you stand out. You also want to leave your hair down so you can show off all your colors.

Summer Hairstyles

By: Claudia Tausel

With summer just around the corner, whole new arrays of hairstyles are coming into style. One of my favorites is the Braided Crown. This hairstyle is great for a night out, or keeping your hair out of your face.

The Braided Crown works great with wavy or curly hair, but is also good with straight hair. Start out by taking a small section of hair from the front of your head, on either side. Unlike a french braid, only add strands of hair from the top. When you get to the center of your head, braid the strands a couple more times, without adding any extra hair. Secure the braid with a hair tie. Do the same thing to the other side of your head. When the two braids are touching, combine them together by crossing one on top of the other. Tuck the loose ends of hair underneath the braid with bobby pins. Feel free to add a flower, bow, or other kind of accessory to dress up this look.

This next style, Beach Waves, works best on long hair, but can be done with medium length. Start at the nape of the neck, and braid your hair. Try to braid as far as you can, because this will give the best look.

Plug in your flat iron, and put it on high heat. After it heats up, run the iron over the length of the braid. Make sure you keep it on long enough, otherwise this won't work. To be more specific, start at the top of the braid, and clamp the iron down for roughly ten seconds. Move the iron down the braid, and repeat. Do this to the whole braid. Wait for it to cool down, then take the hair tie out. Undo the braid and flip your head upside-down a couple of times to add some volume.

If you don't have the time to do this in the morning, something I always love to do is the Overnight Waves. Take a shower or spray your hair with a spray bottle full of water. Although you don't have to, it is best to start with damp hair. Start with a small section of hair, just above your forehead, and french braid it. Leave this in overnight, and in the morning you will have gorgeous waves! Just add some hair product, and the look is finished!

The end product of Beach Waves.

The green shade represents the braid coming from the left, crossing over the blue shaded braid.

Tame Your Mane

By: Emily Pappin

Heat tools for hair can cause major damage, as anyone who has used them knows. Lisa Jones, 21, knows this firsthand. Not knowing that her iron had been under a recall for causing severe damage to the hair of the people who used it, Jones straightened her hair, not doing anything out of the ordinary that morning. After a full day and shower, she noticed it stayed straight and smelled slightly burnt. After her hair staying straight for almost a week, when she went in for a haircut Jones decided to ask her hairdresser about what she was experiencing. After researching further into the topic, Jones found that she had permanently damaged her hair follicles. Jones ended up cutting most of her hair off in order for it to grow back healthy again. It wasn't even her fault that this had happened; it was the flat iron's malfunction that changed her hair forever.

After dealing with the damage heat caused her, Jones decided to try and spread awareness about this problem. "Some girls straighten, curl, crimp, or blow dry their hair every day," says Jones. "They are unaware of the damage they are doing, and how using these tools everyday can affect how healthy your hair is. The effects of heat could show up tomorrow or even in a few years." Jones is attempting to draw attention to heat protectant spray, certain that if more people knew about all of the unknown benefits of this less popular product, more people would buy it. Good heat protectant sprays can contain many different vitamins hair needs that most people don't consume enough of in their food. This can cause your hair to be healthier, grow longer, grow faster, and be more resistant to damage after a long period of time using heat protectant spray.

On her website www.tameyourmane.com, Jones has taken up reviewing products that work and don't work for her, along with additional help from family and friends. Jones also has appeared in a few popular hair, beauty, and teen magazines to spread the word about her cause. Since spreading the word about hair care and heat damage, traffic on her site has increased significantly. According to her website, Jones has declared Bad Hair Day's vitamin-infused heat protection serum the best. The triple oil formula gives hair shine after using a heat tool while making hair healthier at the same time. For curlier hair, hair line Shine's curly hair protecting cream seems to be the best. After combing this product through curly hair instead of spraying, Shine's product defines curls, leaving them less frizzy and healthier than before.

After gaining some publicity, Jones decided to try and create her own line of products through a partnership with popular hair line Tresses. Under the same moniker as her website, Tame Your Mane hair care products are in the making. Jones' first item will obviously be her heat protectant spray, along with some possible irons later on if the brand catches on. The brand will feature as many natural products as possible, focusing on the health of consumer's hair. The news of how long this partnership will last or how many different products will be available on shelves has not been announced yet. As of April 20th, on www.tameyourmane.com Jones announced there will be a mousse, hairspray, heat protectant, and shine spray available included in her lineup, with, of course, as many natural products Jones can possibly use, as mentioned earlier.

In the future, Jones has talked about staying in the hair business. “I want to become a hair dresser, and admit to entertaining the idea of owning my own salon,” Jones writes on her site. With all of the success of her media campaign behind her, she is bound to be a public hit. Jones knows about hair care thanks to all of her time spent researching what was wrong with her own hair. She has a broad knowledge of what products are good or bad for different types of hair, as well as what ingredients to avoid as much as possible. Jones truly cares about each person who comes to her, whether in person, through her magazine ties, or on her site. It’s hard to imagine her not making it with her own business! Check out Tame Your Mane by Lisa Jones in partnership with Tresses when it hits the shelves.

Bad Hair Day Disaster

By: Patricia Walters

It was a normal night for Molly Cate, other than the fact that tomorrow was her first day of school as being a sophomore. She was of course nervous, however, she was excited too. She had just gotten a whole new stylish wardrobe and was ready start a fresh new year of her high school career.

That night she was going to color her hair a lighter shade of golden brown so for her first day of school she would look like she spent a lot of time out in the sun this summer. She was also going to put on a self-tanning spray to look like she really soaked up the sun this summer as well. She knew that doing both of these major styling changes the night before the first day of school was really risky in case something went wrong, but she was willing to risk it in order to look fresh from summer tomorrow. Plus she had been so busy in the last two weeks of summer vacation trying to get school supplies and get her last fun moments of vacation in, that she forgot to dye her hair and tan her skin beforehand.

After she dyed her hair, she washed her hair like it said on the box then she put the tanning spray on, then lastly wrapped a towel around her hair and went to bed for what she thought would be a peaceful sleep.

She woke up the next more excited to see her new golden brown hair and her perfect glowing tan. When she went into her bathroom to unravel the towel that was over her hair when she saw that her skin was much oranger than it was supposed to! Now she had to unravel her hair, and now she was nervous. She took the towel off of her hair and she screamed. Her mom came rushing in to see what was the matter and her jaw dropped at the sight of Molly. Her skin was tinted orange, but worse her hair was green.

“My hair is green and my skin is orange, I look like I belong in Willy Wonka’s chocolate factory!” Molly blurted.

“Honey, you don’t look like an Oompa Loompa, you are pretty tall for your age” Her mother joked.

“This isn’t funny!” Molly stated through her clenched teeth.

“Well, it’s not that bad” her mother assured, “I’m sure we can figure something out, in the hour and fifteen minutes we have before you need to be at school”.

“Well we better figure something out!” yelled Molly.

First, her mom blow-dried Molly’s hair hoping that the color wouldn’t be as dark when the hair was dry. It got a little lighter, but it was still green and there had to be more work done. Now her mom took vinegar and baking soda, and scrubbed it into Molly’s hair, because she read online that doing this will take out hair dye quickly. It helped a little but now her hair was bleach blond with a tint of green plus her skin was orange! They decided to give the hair a rest for a little bit and focus on her skin. They figured all that they could really do is try to scrub the tanning spray off. So they got their sponges and washcloths and started scrubbing her skin. After twenty minutes of scrubbing, Molly’s skin started to look somewhat normal with it only being a faint color of orange instead. Back to her hair, they decided that the only way to fix it would dye it again. Luckily they happened to have another box of hair coloring, so they lightly colored it very carefully, so that Molly’s hair wouldn’t fall out from all of the damage that had been done to it in the last twenty four hours. Now twenty minutes after that, they washed her hair and blow dried it, then to their surprise it looked brown! At this point they were extremely excited that they had successfully partially fixed Molly's orange skin and green hair. Now with only twenty eight minutes before the bus would come to pick Molly up, the fun wasn't over just yet. Molly's hair, which was normally as straight as a board, was incredibly frizzy now, due to all of the work done on it. They just got their brush, straightener, and a lot of hairspray and moose. While brushing her hair, the brush gets stuck, and they have to cut it out! Then while straightening Molly's hair, they burn her hair with the iron. Molly is at this point having a panic attack, because of the stress and unsurity of how this will all end up, and her mother is just trying to focus on Molly's hair as she is also starting to freak out! Once they get her hair as straight as they can, they agreed that the only possible thing to do with the hair was to put it in an up do to try to hide the hair missing and the spot burnt by the iron. After over an hour of frantically working on Molly's green hair and orange skin, they just put a load of moose and hairspray in Molly's hair, put it in a cute ponytail and throw some makeup on her face. They could finally breathe a tiny sigh of relief, just as Molly now had to quickly slip on her outfit that she had picked out. As she grabbed her school supplies and an apple to eat as her breakfast on her way to the bus, her little brother in 7th grade stepped out of his room in his pajamas having just woken up. Right before she leaped out of the door, he stated "Molly, where are you going?"

She was speechless, "Why aren't you dressed and ready to go, it's the first day school!"

"No it's not, tomorrow is" he replied in confusion.

Molly's mother ran to the calendar, "Oh my goodness, he's right!" She concluded, "How could we have possibly gotten it mixed up!"

"You have got to be kidding me, I can't believe it!" Molly exclaimed, "Well on the bright side, now we can go to a real hair stylist today, and get this whole mess figured out" Molly stated with enormous relief.

Does your hair ever stick up, and do you never seem to get your hair the way you want it? Do you wish that you could find a solution to your basic beauty needs? Gellish men's hair gel not only gives a luscious scent to your hair, but it also controls the most hard to tame hair styles!

Gellish, while holding hair, also washes it at the same time cleansing your hair. Gellish has unique ingredients to give it the key hold you need while being at a low price of only $5.95 for a twenty ounce bottle.

We also provide other products to cleanse and replenish your needy hair. Our newest product Gel-Brush is a brush that supplies gel to your hair while brushing your hair! Many of these rare products tend to only give your hair a hold of an hour. Gel-Brush holds your hair for a minimum of eight hours depending on the activities you attend during the day.

Our men's hair gel products line is the best in the nation. Dr. Hairloom (a hair specialist from New York) explains in the New York Times that Gellish and Gel-Brush are both the most effective ways to hold your hair, and style it anyway you want!

Our biggest and best hair shampoo and conditioner product is out in the market now! Lishoo and Lishious-condition give both a tremendous refresher and a fantastic smell to give you a result of more volume and thickness.

Coming in a variety of smells (cherry, green apple, strawberry, raspberry, blueberry, Blue Ocean, mint and more). You can choose the one that will please your loved one and no one will want to get away from you because of your lishious smell!

We make sure each of our bottles provides only our best samples of lish and "You can expect nothing but the best," says Split-End Shampooer (hair and scalp product owner at Gellish.) Each of our bottles contains only our best batches of our Lish products.

Another great characteristic about Gellish and Lish products in general is that it doesn't have a greasy look to it. Most gels infer that you may have greased your hair, or that's how it looks anyway. But with Gellish it gives you a hold while looking absolutely normal and not greasy!

Come into our factory and explore the different things we put in our products. All material that we put in our Lish products are one-hundred percent organic. Your hair growth with Lish will be natural and non-threatening to the health of your hair and your scalp. Sam Scalpey a hair stylist explains to Gellish that the only product he uses to style other guys' hair is Lish products. "Many other products are too sticky and greasy, but Lish products are the only effective way to style hair and hold it the way you want," explains Scalpey.

Our product is the best men's hair product out in the market as we speak. Other products sell for crazy prices but Lish provides the best products at the lowest prices! You can do the math on that! Try our brand new Gel-Brush, Gellish, Lishoo, and Lishious-Condition products today and save money while getting the quality of the product that you need!

Gel-Brush men's scalp replentisher is only out for a limited amount of time, hurry now to get it for our lowest price offer! If you try one bottle of Lish I will guarantee you will be hooked onto our product. If you care about your hair and how you look Lish products are a fit for you and everyone for that matter!

A Bad Day for a Bun

By: Megan Bonikowske

You know those days where you just do not even want to step out of the sheltered house? Well, Monday was one of those terrible days. Not wanting to get out of bed was one of the hardest things I would ever have to do, as my brother, Luke screamed for me to wake up. The past night I had spent partying and playing with my friends as we have a blast at our blazing bonfire; which later lead to being extremely tired and completely wiped out. At this point, this was the worst morning of my life.

While I was stepping into that slippery shower, I knew that I was going to need some major repairing for this terrible mob of mess on my crazy head. As I soaked in some major globs of shampoo and conditioner, I was hoping for some giant amount of fixture in my bizarre hair.

As I stepped out of the shower I realized that sadly, my hair was not repaired, but even worse. Sprinting through the halls in my wet towel, attempting to look up on my phone how to fix my bush of hair, I looked at the clock realizing that there was only twenty-eight minutes until school started. Since I had not eaten yet, I had to shove a granola bar in my mouth as fast as I could so I could focus on my hair.

As I ambled down the steps, my brother screamed "What are you doing? Is it crazy hair day or something?" Which made me even more depressed, lacking even more self-confidence. Replying, "No, it is NOT crazy hair day; it is called a bad hair day!" I yelled as I powerfully stomped out of the crowded room. Waking up of the wrong side of the bed is not as enjoyable as it seems. As I came back to reality I remember this awesome hair detangler my mom had just bought, so I ran right to the miracle closet which contained the spray. As I drenched my hair in this spray I hoped to gosh that this so called "miracle" spray would work an actual wonder. But, of course, instead of this terrible spray working a phenomenon, it made my frizzy hair even worse. Becoming so incredibly frustrated I decided I needed a giant wig to cover up this terrible mess. Without thinking, I went down the stairs to go grab my dad's sharp shaver for his scruffy face. Little piece by piece, I began to shave my hairy head, which I needed to do to wear the wig. It was just until I finished shaving that I came back to reality and realized that I had just shaved my entire head! As I looked in the mirror, my frustration started building up; I began crying, and screaming. Seeing my bald head in the mirror seemed extremely worse than that mess of hair on my head.

As I ran upstairs, I also remembered that I needed a wig, and I needed a decent one fast. The only thing I could think of to work out was our mystical Halloween wigs. Digging through the huge bucket, I finally found one, a blonde Hannah Kentucky wig from my childhood. I was originally a red-head, so changing to a blonde would be very noticeable, so I decided to keep looking. Finally, I found a Blueberry Longpie wig, which was bright red, unlike my usual orange hair. But, this wig was a lot better than the bright blonde Hannah Kentucky, so it would have to work. Looking in the mirror, which I am surprised did not shatter when I looked in it, I was horrified! I never realized how different a hair color could make you look. And maybe this change was for the better. Still not liking the idea of having to wear a wig for the next couple months, I knew I would eventually get over it. And who knows, maybe experimenting with my hair would help me make other friends in different groups. Plus, I realized the hair did make me look a lot more artistic and eccentric. Wearing a different wig every day also sounded like a lot of fun. The only thing I was not looking forward to was that I had to explain what had all happened to my mom.
