LETTER FROM

Dear Readers:

With summer just around the corner, a lot of people are going to be thinking about where they are going to go and how they are going to be spending their free time with their family and friends. Amusement parks are a great place to go with family and friends, especially if you like excitement. Thrill will detail the best amusement parks around and help you decide the perfect park for you. Whether you like giant drops, sharp turns, or fast upside down loops, Thrill will give you the absolute best reviews and the best discounts for your trip to an amusement park. For those of you traveling outside the U.S., Thrill will also recommend the best amusement parks around the world that will give you an experience of your life.

Creating this magazine was not easy. Thrill is a digital magazine and articles, ads, and other items people wrote for me had to be saved into my Dropbox. Since almost everyone writing for me was creating a paper magazine, the Dropbox concept was harder for them because they just wanted to print it off instead of providing an electronic copy to my Dropbox. But since technology is the wave of the future, it was a good experience to use some websites and apps that I have never used before and could be handy in the future. After I had everything I needed for my digital magazine, extra time was needed to convert Word documents to PDF documents. I also needed to scan all ads that were given to me hand drawn by others. During each ELT at school, the people creating digital magazines spent their time learning more about how to finalize and add more content to their digital magazine. Deadline and creating articles, ads, letters to the editor, and miscellaneous items for others had to be done at night. It was not too much for me but it was enough. I was always on time for my deadlines and even got to check in some deadlines a couple weeks before they were due because I already had enough articles that people had bought or sold to me.

Everyone that I asked to write for me was willing to write. I was lucky to have more than fifteen people writing for me so I knew I would have enough for my digital magazine. Almost everyone that contributed to my magazine gave me their assignments on time and there were only a few I had to push through fast on the corrections because that certain item was due the next day. I would like to mention Claudia Tausel for her outstanding work on her article for me on the best amusement parks. You can tell she put a lot of effort into writing this article because it is one of the best and most creative I have received for my magazine.

My goal while making this magazine was to give excellent information on amusement parks and I think I did a pretty good job, with the help of my writers. I wanted to help all my readers find the best amusement parks around, determine what to look for in amusement parks, safety concerns, and much more. Another goal I had was to be on time with all deadlines, which I was. I wanted to make this project a great one and put a lot of effort into it.

Overall, my experience with deadline was pretty good. It was one of my favorite language projects of the year because I liked doing this more than writing papers. I enjoyed writing articles and stories for others, making ads and other miscellaneous items because there were no limits on creativity. I liked coming up with interesting stories for others that I knew would never be real in real life. Although deadline could get a bit hard since I was doing a digital magazine and using websites I did not know how to use, I enjoyed this project. I would like to thank Ms. Miller for showing me new websites that helped me create this magazine and for helping me convert all my Word documents into PDF documents. Ms. Miller's time and help was greatly appreciated. Also, thank you readers and writers! Without you, this magazine would not be possible!

Ashley Stillman

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I really like your magazine. You have all the new rides in the big amusement parks. I love that your magazine persuades the reader to go on the ride. I am afraid of heights but after reading your magazine, I faced my fears and went to one of the amusement parks. Your magazine shows all the good in the parks and the brand new rides. I am ready for the next issue of your magazine.

Sincerely,

Nicole Johnson

Dear Editor:

Thanks to you, my summer was amazing! My whole family went to ALL of the amusement parks you recommended, especially Mountain Brewer Amusement Park located in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. It had so many roller coasters that did loops and twists and turns. Even the food there was awesome! From now on, I will always read your magazines and even tell my friends to read them too. I can't wait for your next issue for more of these amusement park recommendations!

Sincerely,

Katie Guyette

Top Amusement Parks to Visit

By Claudia Tausel

There are over 500 amusement parks nationwide, but only a couple are ranked the absolute best. See which ones have five stars, and get an average of 71,000,000 visitors yearly. There might be one near you!

Utopia is one of the most outrageous amusement parks ever built! Not only does it include rides and swimming, but has an ice cream buffet where you can create your own ice cream dessert. The toppings include chopped nuts, marshmallows, chocolate, caramel, cherry, and strawberry syrup, sprinkles, Oreos, cookie dough, candy bars, and much more! You can then enter a contest to have your very own creation become a menu item at the snack bar.

Besides the food, the roller coasters are some of the most artistically built, from upside-down to driving through fountains of chocolate. You can get your picture taken with you covered head-to-toe in chocolate after the ride! Another exciting place to visit in Utopia is the caramel swimming pool. The whole pool is filled with 80,000 gallons of liquidized caramel. After swimming, you can refresh yourself in a hot water pool, which will take all the caramel off your body without hassle. Many people recommend not going all the way underwater due to health hazards.

The next is Roaring Waves. Every ride and attraction is based on getting wet. Even though Roaring Waves is not a highly visited area, it is still lots of fun! One roller coaster dumps a giant bucket of water on everyone's head. Another travels through an underwater cave full of marine life. H₂O Dive is one of the best rated rides of them all. It is about six miles long in total, and does everything from diving into the water to spraying you with it!

The Relaxation Pool is an oversized swimming pool packed with fish, turtles, dolphins, and sting rays. Being twelve feet deep, it is a good idea to watch small children at all times. The animals are all safe to be swim with, so scuba diving gear is available to rent for the day. Visiting Roaring Waves is a great way to make memories with your family.

Wonder Waters gets rated five stars by the most persnickety critics. Again, this is mostly a water park. It has amusing rides such as the Twisty. The entire ride, you go in circles and get water sprayed all over you. You can get your picture taken with Wonder Waters mascot, Drippy-Drop the water droplet.

Once a day, Wonder Waters has a water balloon war. Including over 10,000 colorful balloons, this is one festivity not to miss! Oh, and the cool part is, not all the water balloons are filled with water. Some have chocolate syrup, whipped cream, Kool-Aid, or root beer in them. Whoever lasts the longest without getting hit is declared the winner of the day. Your picture is then posted on a giant wall at the front of the Wonder Waters entrance. The water balloon war is held in a large room filled with colorful lights.

The last, and definitely the best, is Maxed out Fun! Including over 200 fun filled activities, Maxed out Fun! is rated the highest by kids, having not only roller coasters, but laser tag arenas, Ultra Screen movies, and more. Every person who visits Maxed out Fun! gets a t-shirt designed by other kids who have been there.

Over 9,000,000 people go to Maxed out Fun! annually. Not one person who has been there gave a rating below four stars! What makes Maxed out Fun! so great? Well, the manager of Maxed out Fun! says that on every ride, one out of ten people will throw up on its rides. And that one person that does gets a free bag of cotton candy.

The admission is also very cheap, at a starting fee of ten dollars per person.

The one thing at Maxed out Fun! that people can't stop raving about is the ice cream. With over 450 flavors, one of them is sure to get your mouth watering. Some of them include barbeque chicken, pancakes, basil, squid, olive, omelet, and pasta. Flavors such as pancakes have corresponding toppings to go with them: maple syrup, chocolate chips, and pecans.

With all these awesome amusement parks, there is bound to be one for everybody! Come and check out these parks, even if they're not in your area. It is kind of fun to have a family road trip every once in a while!

What to Look for in an Amusement Park

By: Cara Byom

Are you looking for something to do over spring break or in the summer? There are so many amusement parks you can visit for the day or for the weekend. How do I pick an amusement park I will enjoy? This question is asked very often. What if the amusement park has only big roller coasters that you're too afraid to ride? What if it's full of little kid rides that are boring? You need to find an amusement park that's fit for you and your family.

The first thing you need to do is plan a day or a weekend you can go. If you go for the weekend you need to find a hotel to fit your budget. Do some research on the hotel and amusement park for prices and location.

The first thing to look at is the cost. Find an amusement park that you can afford to buy tickets for the day or weekend. If it is too expensive find one that is cheaper. Just because a park might be cheaper doesn't mean it won't be any fun. You could still have the time of your life. Do some research to see what kind of rides and entertainment it has.

The next thing is to look at the rides. Do you like big roller coasters or little kid rides? If you are looking to have a good time and send some chills down your spine you definitely want to pick an amusement park with big, scary rides. If you have children coming along who are not yet willing to ride the thrilling roller coasters, you will want to go to an amusement park for children. A nice children amusement park is Rock Mountain in Appleton, Wisconsin. Little kids can enjoy rides that spin and turn making them giggle with joy. A great amusement park if you're looking for thriller rides is Twelve Flags. This park has the scariest rides you will ever experience. From four-hundred foot drops to triple 360 turns you will find out what it really means to be afraid.

The last thing you should look at is how good the service is. Look at reviews and ask around to see how good their service is. Are they helpful? Do they keep the place clean? Do they run the place well? These are all questions you might want to get the answer to before you head on your journey to an amusement park.

Now that you know everything there is to know about amusement parks you can enjoy your time at an amusement park. Have fun!!

PUKE-O-METER

H²O Explode, located in Wild Waters Amusement Park, gives you the thrill of your life! It is one of the first roller coasters to go underwater, and it also has 360 degree turns with up to 500 foot drops.

The Corkscrew x7, located in Fun Land Amusement Park, is extremely terrifying! It takes you through 7 corkscrew loops nonstop all in one row, making you extremely dizzy. This rollercoaster may give you the most extreme 1 minute and 5 seconds of your entire life!

Sky Rocket, located in Mountain Extreme Amusement Park, is just like it sounds. It brings you up a slow 150 feet and drops back down at up to 75 M.P.H. It also has amazingly large triple loops with constant turns and jerks; you never know where you are going!

Horizontal Velocity, located in 12 Flags Amusement Park, is a one-of-a-kind ride. You ride on your side the whole time, as the cars speed up to 100 M.P.H. while moving from one end to the other end along a 100 foot horizontal track. There is a jerking stop at the end of the track each time before it races back to the other end.

How to Prevent Losing Your Possessions, or People, at an Amusement Park

By: Haley Graves

It is a big ordeal at an amusement park when you lose something or someone. Here are some helpful tips to avoid losing your belongings or your group.

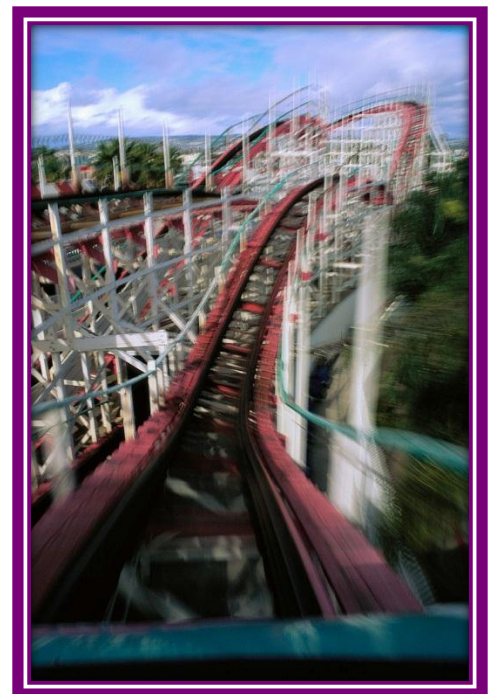

One of the first tips is to not bring anything valuable with you. It's understandable if you want to take pictures of your friends and family to capture the memories, but for goodness sakes! You can just buy a cheap disposable camera and it will have the same effect. You shouldn't bring things with you that you don't want to lose or you don't want to pay for if they break.

The next tips are how to keep your group together. When a group of people go to an amusement park they tend to get separated from the group, or for lack of a better term, they get lost. One way to prevent this is by having a leash attached to each member of the group. If you use this method, you will be sure not to lose the rest of your group ever again! Just be sure you take off the leash before you go on a ride or you or one of your group members could end up getting hurt.

Also, to prevent getting separated from a large group you can wear matching, brightly colored shirts. If you do get lost or separated from the rest of your group, all you need to do is follow the pack of people with bright yellow (or whichever color you chose) shirts on. If your group is large enough, you can split into smaller groups as well. Just don't make the mistake of going up to someone with a similarly colored shirt on.

Another method that has proven to be effective is the buddy system. For this option you will need a larger group. When you first get to the amusement park you can separate yourselves into small groups. You should set up a time to meet the rest of your group again, to help from losing the rest of your group completely. I hope that these tips have proven to be helpful.

Safety on a Roller Coaster

By: Abby Nelson

While riding on a roller coaster there are rules you have to follow. Some rules are just common sense and some rules are not so common but still very important. Safety on a roller coaster or any other ride is one of the most important rules of riding. The second is having fun!

Here are some real life examples why safety is so important. One day I saw a younger couple, about in their early twenties. I saw them at Paula's Ark and they were going to ride the Tornado. The Tornado is the most dangerous roller coaster known to mankind. It has many 360 degree twists and turns and it also has the "toilet" where you go around like water in a toilet bowl.

Right when they got to the line the girl said she had to go to the bathroom. The guy replied in a sad voice. So they went to the bathroom and then they got back in line for the Tornado. When they finally got to the front of the line, the girl admitted that she didn't actually have to go to the bathroom and that she was just scared to ride the roller coaster. He just laughed and said that they didn't have to go on it. She decided to be brave and go on it.

When going down the roller coaster, the girl's hand slipped out right at the worst time. Her hand slipped at the entrance to the "toilet" where there is a space between the "toilet" and the raft, and her finger got caught on the ring of the "toilet". Her finger was cut to the first knuckle and she went to the hospital right away. She ended up with half of her finger.

That is why you keep your hands in the roller coaster. And another story of an unsafe trip on a roller coaster ride is about a woman and a young boy.

I went to New York Dells and there was a woman and her son walking towards one of the kiddie rides with the flying airplanes. The little boy wanted to go on the airplanes so they did. He asked the woman if she would go on with him and she said she would if they both fit. So they climbed into the airplane that was his favorite color, which is blue, and they fit very easily. The woman sat on the inside seat and she told the little boy to put his safety belt on but she didn't put her safety belt on, figuring that she wouldn't fall out.

The mini airplanes started moving and the woman was safe at first but then it started to go faster and faster. The woman was a little worried but she hadn't slipped yet. If you have ever ridden the airplane rides then you know that they have little fake guns to "shoot" other planes. That was the only thing she had to hang on to and it was a little frightening to her.

After about three minutes the airplanes were at their maximum speed and then BAM, she just slipped off and fell onto the pole that is attached the router and the airplane. She fell on the pole and broke her back and her arm.

So why did the woman fall out of the ride? Her fatal mistake was not putting her safety belt on. And the workers that were working the airplane ride didn't check everybody to ensure they were being safe and had their seat belts on. That would have saved her back and arm from being broken. The lesson from this story is you need to put your seat belt on or you could get really hurt or even fatally injured.

In the first story, the girl had no idea that she was going to get her hand caught on the roller coaster. This enforces keeping your hands in the roller coaster. The second story shows that you could get very injured from even a kiddie ride if you don't follow all the safety rules. Also, if you didn't catch it, the son of the injured woman saw it all; if I was the son I would be so very terrified and scared for my mother's life. So from my stories you should interpret that roller coaster safety is so important and that you should always expect the unexpected.

Roller Coaster Review

By: Sara Cooper

The Exhilaration Nation Theme Park is in the process of making a new addition to its already thrilling expanse of rides. The new ride is deemed “The United States’ Economy.” The building of this thrill ride started in December of 2007, and has been a work in progress since that time. “The United States’ Economy” features countless twists, turns, and frequent stomach-wrenching ups and downs.

Although the ride isn’t quite finished, the park offered a special sneak-peak that included three quarters the length that the ride will actually be. A unique feature to this ride is that it contains a timeline; there are many sections, each with its own unique feel. Each of these sections is labeled with a year, starting with 2007. The idea for this ride came from a top executive at the coaster building company “Turn of Events.” This coaster company built many other popular rides such as: The Vomit Comet, Gravity in Space, Extreme^{^2}, The Summit, and The End of the World as You Know It. The launching of “The United States’ Economy” has made the company “Turn of Events” a household name in the roller coaster industry.

The beginning of “The United States’ Economy” features an amazing 1,000 foot-high climb. When reaching the top, the first marking in the timeline is clearly visible. As you approach “December, 2007” you can see the heart-pounding drop straight down. Before you can even react, the cars plummet towards the ground and crash into the track at the bottom. The next few time periods feature many confusing twists, turns, and even have you heading backwards at times! After the confusion, you will start to notice a slight incline, followed by minor ups and downs. As you reach “January 2013” the track starts to become very unstable and rickety. Fog blocks the next length of the track, and no one knows what will happen next. Finally as you travel through a mist of uncertainties, you see that it’s not that bad, even though there are many mixed reactions from the riders. Periodic inclines and declines are all involved; nothing new. The last and final section of the ride is labeled “Late 2013-Early 2014.” The ride continues at a slow and steady pace, sluggish almost. You’re curious as to what this section will bring, and realize there is another sign there, too. It reads “To Be Determined.” And that’s when the bottom drops out from underneath you.

Amusement Park Recommendations

By: Season Bennett

One of the best amusement parks I have even been to is Swirly's Amusement Park. When I went to Swirly's Amusement Park I had so much fun I never wanted to leave. I love this place and going to Swirly's was the best part of my summer. I recommend you bring all your friends and family to this amazing place. The people there are so nice and polite, and if you do a little on-line searching, you can often find some great admission deals. If you plan on spending more than one day at Swirly's, no problem! Swirly's also has thousands of hotel rooms located next to the park.

Swirly's has a little something for everyone. They have over three hundred roller coasters and over one hundred water rides. If you prefer shopping, then hit the on-site mall. Swirly's Mall has hundreds of stores and specialty shops. Don't forget to buy some awesome Swirly's Amusement Park clothing and merchandise.

In addition to hundreds of great rides, Swirly's also has a petting zoo where you can pet hundreds of animals and feed them. They have goats, geese, ducks, cows, a donkey, and horses. And every two hours they also have all your favorite cartoon characters come out for a meet-and-greet and you can get your picture taken with them.

Swirly's has hundreds of awesome roller coasters, and I would like to review a few of them, starting with the Loopy Loop. From the first time I tried the Loopy Loop, I loved it. It was adrenaline-rushing and heart-pounding. This awesome roller coaster had six loops in a row, sharp turns, and a 3,000 foot drop. When I went on this ride it was amazing. I was scared at first, but by the end I had a blast. The loops made you dizzy but the drop was the best part. When the roller coaster went down my stomach felt like it was dropping. And when it reached the bottom, it entered a tunnel and snapped a photo, so always remember to smile! I loved this ride and how much fun it was.

I also loved the Swirl. The Swirl is a ride that goes really fast and is shaped like the letter "U". It goes up on one side of the "U", then drops down and goes up the other side. This ride also made my stomach drop and was very exciting.

Swirly's is in the process of building a new coaster called The Great Leap. This ride will be a very scary ride. On this ride you go up a huge hill and drop straight down 5,000 feet to an underwater tunnel. You will then rise up out of the tunnel and take a sharp turn and head into a massive loop, followed by spinning up a hill. If this isn't enough to make you feel sick, then you will enter a tunnel with strobe lights right before coming to a screeching halt at end of the ride. I can't wait for this ride to be finished and open up. It sounds fun and scary, but mostly fun. The Great Leap will be open next summer.

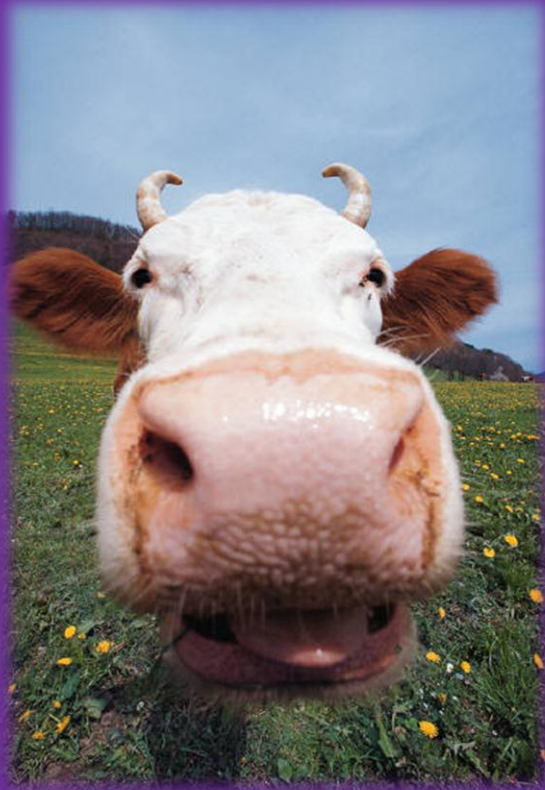

After walking around from coaster to coaster all day, you can get pretty hot. If that's the case, cool down on one of these fun water rides. One I recommend is the Log Rider. You ride inside a rubber log through tunnels, around sharp corners, and down drops of 1,000 feet. I loved the end of the ride; you go under a huge waterfall. In this ride you get wet and splashed a lot.

Another amazing water ride is Raging Rafters. On Raging Rafters you float along a big stream, which includes drop downs, waterfalls, and several tunnels. Some tunnels randomly squirt you with water and other tunnels have animated creatures so it's like watching a show as you pass by. Also on Raging Rafters are several corners with bumpers that bump you from one wall to another as you make the turn.

The last great water slide I want to mention is the Gumball Machine. This ride is like a gumball machine because you go around and around while getting lower to the ground, and then you pop out and get splashed by a waterfall.

I can't wait to come next summer to this amazing place and ride all the rides including the new ride, The Great Leap. I will never forget the day I went to Swirly's. I wish I could live there and never leave. I love amusement parks, especially Swirly's. This was the best summer ever.

Marley's Trip to the Amusement Park

By: Megan Severson

Mollie Martin had an adorable little puppy named Marley. Her dog was extremely well behaved and got along with people and other animals of all sizes and ages. The one thing Mollie loved more than her puppy was going to the different amusement parks around her state. She had always wanted to bring Marley with her to enjoy the excitement like some amusement parks she had read about in the newspaper, but sadly her local amusement parks did not allow pets.

The next day, while watching the news, she saw a new local pet-friendly park was going to be finished in the next month or so. She got so excited she instantly yelled, "Oh my gosh Marley, I can't believe my dream is finally going to come true!" She called all of her family and friends to share the amazing news. Her friend Karla was especially excited because she too had been hoping this would happen. She exclaimed, "Mollie! This is such good news! We definitely need to spread the word so all of the other pet owners around town will know about this extraordinary news!"

The next month the park was finally opening to the public. Mollie and Karla couldn't have been happier. "I can't believe this is real life right now!" yelled Mollie. Karla replied, "I know me either! Look at all of these dog treats and toys that are for sale here!" The girls were so happy their pets could share this experience with them. The next few weeks they visited the amusement park daily. Each day they invited a friend or family member with a pet. This park surely made every pet owner happy. The whole family could go and have fun for the day and never would have to worry about their pets being bored at home. Instead they could be involved with all the fun.

Within two months of the new amusement park's opening day over ten thousand people had visited the pet and child friendly park. The best thing about the park was only certain dogs could be let in. It all depended on how nice the animal, and whether it had all of its shots updated. Everyone was sure to not get bitten and if they did they would not have to worry about getting an infection or terrible injury. The whole park was enclosed with gates to ensure all animals and children could not escape.

There was a variety of different rides at the park for children, teens, and even different things for the dogs to do. Some of the most popular children rides were the merry-go-round, swings, humongous slides, and the little train. Teens were more interested in the roller coasters. The dogs had a ton of different giant obstacle courses in which they burned off a ton of energy. These courses even had many trainers that would help the dogs to have more athleticism. The greatest advantage of the park with dogs was they could lose more weight. If more dogs would come to the park more often, those dogs would have a healthier lifestyle.

Mollie and Karla are extremely glad to have this new amusement park. "This park is more awesome than I could have ever even dreamed of," Mollie stated. Karla agreed saying, "I am so glad Yewnork finally built this very well wanted park for everyone." The girls plan to continue coming back and are so excited they can say they finally have a dog friendly place where their pets could go to have fun as well.

The park, named "Dylan's Dog and Human Amusement Park", has become known worldwide and is often visited by people and dogs from many different cities, states, and event countries! It is a huge tourist attraction in the large city of Labronx, YewNork. Many different types of dogs can be seen at this amusement park and is often visited by thousands of families daily! Mollie and Karla were featured on a popular news channel called “Goodnight World” where they were recognized for the achievement of the highest number of tourist visits in the entire world. They shared, “Being able to bring our best friends to a place we love really makes us happy. We can share our love of amusement parks and rides with our pets and show our love by giving them the freedom to run in the different obstacle courses.” Mollie and Karla plan to go to the park for as long as the health of their dogs and them permits.
